

RED DRIVE REACHES RUMANIAN BORDER

Meandering

Along the

Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

A man whose roots are firmly implanted in the soil of Fayette County, though he hasn't been here much in the last quarter of a century, has been having a fling with the movies . . . but not as an actor.

Hugh Allen, brother of Howard C. Allen, secretary of the Fayette County Auto Club, has been in Hollywood for the past few weeks acting as technical advisor at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot where a picture starring Wallace Beery and based on lighter-than-air craft adventures is being made . . . the title of the picture has not yet been selected.

All this came to light in the Aircraft edition of The Wingfoot Clan, publication of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. publication . . . incidentally, Hugh Allen started out years ago with Goodyear and has risen to the head of the vast public relations department . . . he is confident and personal friend of most of the Goodyear magnates . . . and, in addition to routine public relations duties, has found time to write several books, dealing principally with the romance of lighter-than-air craft more commonly known as dirigibles . . . the navy has been using a lot of them in its anti-submarine patrol off the coasts of America.

Hugh Allen has been getting an eyeful of movieland . . . and has dished out some interesting sidelights in an article in The Wingfoot Clan . . . some of his observations as a first-caller in Hollywood may give you a home-tinged picture . . . here are a few:

"Hollywood is one place which doesn't lose its glamour when you're up close to it . . .

"This huge lot is filled with devices to create illusion and make-believe . . . the ingenuity, resourcefulness and artistry of the job compels your admiration . . .

"You see a man you take for a stage-hand and find out he's a famous actor . . . a colonel turned out to be William Wyler who directed 'Mrs. Miniver' and the man in dungarees and sweater was Mervyn Leroy who has just left for Florida to stage 'Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo' . . .

"You bump into celebrities without warning . . . Wallace Beery took the next booth in the restaurant and almost as on signal twenty people started for him, autograph books in hand . . . the waiters had to break it up . . .

"Monty Woolley went walking through the Roosevelt bar room, whiskers and all, carrying a huge apple for his midnight snack . . .

"Mickey Rooney just hopped into a big car and started off with a crowd of girls . . .

"I was just telling Michael Arlen about a man on the train who read his 'Green Hat' continually, even in the club car during the cocktail hour . . . he seemed pleased . . .

"Stunning in his captain's uniform is Clark Gable, back here editing some of his Army Air Forces pictures taken in action over Europe . . . everyone speaks with highest admiration of this former Ohioan . . . he's tops as a player and a man, they say . . .

"The cutest girls here are the messengers . . . blondes, ultra-blondes and red heads in varicolored slacks . . . each hoping a producer's or director's eye will light on her some day . . . you can't blame them . . .

"The movies have come a long way and Hollywood is the center of it."

And, thus, a one time Fayette County farm boy sees the inside of another of America's fabulous industries.

FAMILIES BROKEN UP BY GERMANS WHEN PICKING REPATRIATES

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 17.—(AP)—A repatriated American charged bitterly today that the Germans at Compiegne deliberately broke up families in deciding which internees would be placed on the passenger list of the Swedish exchange liner Gripsholm.

John Roll of Binghamton, N. Y., said he went to Europe as a soldier during World War I with the 311th infantry, remained there, married and raised three daughters.

He charged the Germans intentionally picked American citizens who had wives and children in France, and let Americans whose wives were in the United States remain in the internment camps.

John F. Wenzel of Waterbury, also interned at the Compiegne camp, said his wife and daughter, though American citizens, still were in France, and that he was taken away without any knowledge of when he would see them again.

GREYHOUND STRIKERS PARALYZE BUS TRAVEL

PITTSBURGH, March 17.—(AP)—A strike of 400 to 500 drivers and other employees today halted all east and west bus travel out of Pittsburgh on Greyhound buses to points as far distant as New York and Chicago. H. S. Crawford, regional manager of the company, stated.

The walkout affected what is known as the company's "Pittsburgh district," which has some 700 employees.

Otis Webb Davey, Jr., born last December, is living with his mother, the former Theodorica P. Andrews, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Preston Andrews of Hempstead, N. Y.

"We regret that it wasn't made three days earlier," informed political figures said, in obvious reference to the fact that the Finnish parliament had reached a decision.

The section of the press opposed to the government displayed President Roosevelt's statement prominently. Newspapers supporting the government tucked it away inside.

The victims were attached to the 66th division and most were members of Company M, 264th infantry.

A board was named to investigate.

Last Monday a surface mine exploded at the camp, killing 12 soldiers and injuring 16 others.

Airborne Allied Troops Land Behind Enemy Lines in Northern Burma and Yank Forces Invade Another Strategic Island in Bismark Sea

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ

(By The Associated Press)

Three smashing Allied offensives—an airborne landing behind Japanese lines in northern Burma, the first land-based bomber raid on Truk in the Central Pacific, the invasion of Manus Island in the Bismark Sea—gave Japan reason for the jitters today.

For the first reported time in the Burma war, Allied airborne troops landed successfully behind crumbling Japanese defenses in the Hukawng valley. Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's forces there are seeking to clear a supply route through northern Burma to China.

Land Bombers Hit Truk

Truk, Japan's mightiest base in the eastern Caroline Islands, is marked for continued air assault after land-based Seventh Air Force Liberator bombers Wednesday night blasted airdromes, supply and munition dumps and naval installations without loss.

The Japanese sent up no fighters against the pre-dawn raiders but filled the darkness with anti-aircraft shells and damaged one plane.

125 Planes Bagged In Raid On Germany

Aerial Squeeze Applied To Nazis as Air War Stepped Up—Not One Plane Lost in Last Night Assault by British Force

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

LONDON, March 17.—(AP)—The American Air Force chopped another big segment out of Adolf Hitler's defensive air force, shooting down 125 enemy planes, including black-painted night fighters which were sent up to ward off a heavy daylight onslaught on Ulm and Friedrichshafen in southern Germany yesterday, a U. S. communique announced today.

Fortress and Liberator gunners accounted for 48 of the enemy single and twin-engine aircraft, which swirled about the American formations, a strategic air force announcement said, while fighters shot down 77. Twelve American fighting planes were lost, while 22 bombers failed to return.

Aerial Squeeze on Nazis

Indicating a possible two-way daylight aerial strike against Germany, the German radio said American bombers were flying over the Alps into German territory at noon today—apparently from Italy.

At the same time coastal observers in Britain reported large streams of daylight raiders heading toward the continent.

The smash at southern German targets was followed last night by small but heavily freighted bombardment fleets of the RAF which struck again at German transport in France, pounding the Michelin Tire factory at Clermont-Ferrand, 30 miles southwest of Vichy, and the rail yards at Amiens, both master cogs in Hitler's anti-invasion machinery.

Not a plane was lost in this second successive night operation of the RAF's heavy bombers which hit a peak stride Wednesday night when more than 1,000 of the four-engine British planes pounded Stuttgart and other targets with over 3,360 tons of bombs.

Mosquitos last night also hit objectives in western Germany and minelayers carried out widespread operations.

The Air Ministry said Lancasters, thundering at Clermont-Ferrand in a clear night sky, deposited

Another Islet Invaded

In the Southwest Pacific, where Gen. Douglas MacArthur celebrated his second anniversary as supreme Allied commander, American troops swept ashore on Manus Island, largest in the Admiralty group, Wednesday and by nightfall were within a half mile of important Lorengau airdrome.

The battle-tested Americans suffered only minor casualties in the landing but met strong defenses near the airdrome.

The invasion was sprung from adjacent Los Negros Island, invaded by MacArthur's forces February 29.

BITTER FIGHTING IS STILL RAGING AROUND CASSINO

Germans Hold Out Stubbornly In Blasted Abbey—Fight Flares on Beachhead

By RICHARD MCMURRAY

(By The Associated Press)

The British news agency Reuters said today the Russians had reached the Dniester River at several points and that the Germans were streaming into Bessarabia at Mogilev Podolski.

The Dniester was a boundary between Russia and Rumania before the war. Mogilev Podolski is one of three major Dniester crossings into Bessarabia, and it lies southwest of besieged Vinnitsa and 260 miles northeast of the Ploesti oil fields. There was no confirmation from Moscow, where the latest communique at midnight placed forward Russians 25 miles from the great stream.

Fight Rages In Cassino

All Cassino except the strategic corner commanding highway six to the Liri Valley and Rome was in fifth army hands today after New Zealand troops fought through the wasted town and their comrades captured several commanding heights nearby.

German resistance still was furious. They fought from mounds of rubble stone. From mountains and the ruins of the Benedictine monastery, they poured mortar fire into Allied ranks. They clung tenaciously to mountains west and northwest of Cassino into which the Allies advanced slowly. On the Anzio beaches, other Allied troops repelled three small attacks.

Fifth Army artillery poured streams of shells late yesterday into the Nazi-occupied ruins of the Benedictine Abbey atop Monastery Hill in support of ground troops climbing slowly upward against blazing enemy guns. Allied smoke shells spread a heavy pall around the hilltop, hiding activities in the valley from German observation.

Germans Won't Give Up Writing from just outside Cassino last night, Associated Press war correspondent Lynn Heinzerling said:

"The astonishing thing about today's fighting was the fierceness which the Germans displayed after the smothering aerial attack of yesterday."

Inside Cassino Allied engineers filled huge bomb craters and cleared a path through the rubble for tanks and foot soldiers.

Eighteen Germans were taken prisoner soon after the New Zealanders entered the town, it was officially announced, and two German tanks were knocked out west of the town.

On the beachhead below Rome American troops beat back German counter-attacks aimed at regaining two strong points taken two days ago near Carano, east of Carroceto. Casualties were inflicted on the Germans and some prisoners were taken.

British heavy and medium bombers crossed the Adriatic and showered incendiaries on the Bulgarian capital of Sofia for the second successive night.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN IRELAND DRAB

War Restrictions Temper Spirit of People

By ROGER GREENE

Dublin, March 17.—The bells of an uneasy peace rang out in troubled Eire this St. Patrick's Day. The warning of Prime Minister Churchill that the country would be isolated from the outer world hung heavy over the nation.

The British have said quarantine of Eire is necessary to safeguard against possible leakage of information about Allied pre-invasion movements, and Ireland on the holiday looked forward to grim days rivaling, if not surpassing, the leanness of wartime England.

Dublin was thronged, but all pubs were closed and the olden picture of Irishmen parading to the skirl of pipes and the inner lift of "a wee drap o' the crature" was missing.

Superintendent's Removal One Of Demands

CINCINNATI, March 17.—(AP)—

A strike of more than 300 junior and senior high school students of suburban reading school continued today after a mass meeting of parents and pupils decided to petition for reinstatement of Donald Bradford, 30-year-old mathematics instructor whose dismissal caused the students to leave their classes.

Petitions also demanded removal of Superintendent Omar L. Bussey. Neither Bussey nor school board members were available for comment.

The students walked out of their classrooms yesterday morning, contending Bradford was discharged because of activity with the American Federation of Teachers (AFL).

CHANGE OF TIME FAVORED HERE REPORTS SHOW

Many Surrounding Cities To Change Time First of April

City Manager Walter L. Stambaugh said Wednesday that so far as he had inquired nearly everyone is in favor of the change of time contemplated for April 1, when many surrounding cities, including Columbus, Wilmington, Greenfield and Hillsboro, will change to Eastern War Time.

In the meantime some of the other cities are undecided, some have not yet planned to change, and still others have been observing Eastern War Time regularly, winter and summer.

The matter was brought up in this city at the last session of council, and City Manager and Council as a whole decided to investigate and report at the next meeting.

Stambaugh said that present indications are that the resolution to fall in line with other towns and adopt the fast time would be passed at the next meeting.

Hillsboro, Greenfield and some other towns in that area will change at midnight, March 31.

Wilmington changes Sunday, April 2.

The Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants has announced the result of a survey shows most Ohio cities will step up one hour by May 1.

Mansfield went on Eastern War Time, Feb. 20 and Shelby the same date.

Mt. Vernon, Nelsonville, Portsmouth, Toledo, Zanesville and some others are scheduled to make the change April 1.

Bellefontaine, Columbus, London and Springfield change on April 2.

Chillicothe has also adopted fast time.

Akron, Cleveland, Youngstown, Sandusky and other cities will change April 16.

Cincinnati is expected to change to fast time sometime in April. Circleville has not announced decision.

(Berlin dispatches indicated the German foreign office expected Russia to demand that the United States break relations with Finland if the peace terms were formally rejected as unofficial reports in Stockholm say the Finnish parliament voted to do.)

"NOT MUCH HOPE"
STOCKHOLM, March 17—(P)—Finland's reply to Russian armistice terms was delivered to the Russian legation in Stockholm today and a Finnish diplomatic source told the Associated Press "I do not have much hope for peace."

The reply presumably was handed to Mme. Alexandra Kolontay, the 75-year-old Russian minister, for transmission to Moscow. The deadline for the Finnish answer to Russia's final proposals is Saturday.

It is understood Finland will announce the contents of its note tomorrow after receiving assurances the reply has reached Moscow.

The work of patching streets is also under way, as weather permits, and already scores of breaks in the black top have been repaired temporarily until they can be given proper attention.

PVT. WILLIAM M'COY STILL IN HOSPITAL

First Operation To Find Bullet
Unsuccessful

Pvt. William McCoy, who was wounded in the back by a mysterious bullet while on maneuvers, is still confined to the hospital at Fort McClellan, Ala.

Mrs. McCoy, formerly Donna Brandenburg, and her father, Thane McCoy, of near Bloomingburg, are with him at the hospital in Alabama. The Brandenburg family here received a phone call from Mrs. McCoy Friday morning.

Immediately after it was discovered by the officers that McCoy had been wounded he was rushed to the hospital, where an operation was performed to probe for the bullet in his back, Mrs. McCoy said. The operation was not successful, so the hospital authorities are to operate again after he has been in the hospital for about two weeks and is up and around for one week, she added.

Mrs. McCoy said her husband was looking rather "pale" but otherwise seems to be in good spirits, and is doing as "well as can be expected."

Mrs. McCoy also told her parents "it has not yet been determined where the shot came from" and went on to explain that seven of the personnel at the camp were out on the field when her husband was hit. He took two steps and fell to the ground. She then told that "when the officers saw him fall, they rushed up and told the men with him to make a stretcher out of their guns and a blanket. They carried him back 300 feet to the camp, where an ambulance was waiting to rush him to the hospital." She said at the hospital they operated, making three incisions in his back but they couldn't find the bullet.

Amiens, key rail junction between Paris and the Channel, had been hit three times in 48 hours.

Marauders also struck in daylight Wednesday at the rail yards at Aulnoye, four miles south of Amiens.

Amiens is 81 miles north of Paris, and about 30 miles from Pas-de-Calais.

Clermont-Ferrand is one of the most important centers of the rubber industry on the continent of Europe.

Land in Switzerland

Bern dispatches said seven American bombers in yesterday's smash into southern Germany were forced to land on Swiss soil, three of them crashing. Most of the crew members parachuted to safety and were interned, but one Liberator fell into Lake Zoug and one of its crew perished.

Two British bombers and one German night fighter also were forced to land in Switzerland.

A total of 10 foreign planes have landed on Swiss territory since March 16.

The foray yesterday, in which the Germans said Augsburg also was bombed, netted one of the biggest bags of enemy fighters ever shot down in a single day.

It was the largest toll of the enemy since March 8 when 125 German fighting planes were shot out of the sky, but not up to the mark of 176 shot down on March 6 in the heavy raid in Berlin when 68 bombers were lost.

Yankee fighters, in accounting for 77 yesterday, were only six short of their one-day record of 83 established in the Berlin raid of March 6.

MacArthur Celebration

Gen. MacArthur said flatly today he is interested in only one thing—to return to the Philippine Islands.

At a Commonwealth dinner following ceremonies in which he was decorated with the Grand Cross of the Order of Bath, MacArthur stated deliberately he wanted to reiterate that when he arrived in Australia two years ago today, his mission was to return to the Philippines.

This mission, he said, is still unchanged.

Two years ago he said:

"The president of the United States has ordered me to break through the Japanese lines and proceed from Corregidor to Australia for the purpose, as I understand it, of organizing an American offensive against Japan. The primary purpose of this is the relief of the Philippines."

"I came through and I shall return."

Australians Remember

Australia's government and people recalled those words today as they honored the Allied supreme commander in the southwest.

In geographical terms, MacArthur is not much nearer the Philippines today than he was when he stepped from a Flying Fortress at Darwin, Australia, two years ago.

But MacArthur is much nearer fulfillment of his goal in terms of the military machine he now commands, and in terms of enemy ships, planes, forces destroyed or isolated, lines of communication and supply cut or disrupted and Japanese holdings recaptured or rendered impotent.

When the general arrived two years ago, he found Australia under hourly threat of invasion.

Today, Australia is not only reasonably safe from invasion but is proving its worth as an operations base.

The Japanese repeatedly attempted to knock the Allies off-balance during the transition from the defensive to the offensive. But the American navy, Australian troops and finally American forces with American-Australian air support stemmed the enemy drives.

Darwin still is nearer the Philippines than any other Allied-held point. But instead of the shattered, "easy" target for Japanese bombers MacArthur found in 1942, Darwin now is a strongly held Allied base.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

One supposes the spectacular bombing of Cassino will be listed among the war's phenomena, if for no other reason than because of its terrifying weight, but it remains to be seen how much more the feat has achieved than to prove anew that such concentrated air power grinds mighty fine.

The purpose of this carefully prepared attack was to break the Gustav Line and open up the broad highway to Rome for the stalled Allied forces. Pending developments we shall do well to reserve judgment as to how far it has succeeded. It strikes me there's tough fighting ahead before we smash through the remaining Nazi mountain defenses.

Probably it has come as a shock to some to learn that, despite the pulverizing of Cassino, Germans were there to defend the ruins when the Allied troops pushed in after the deluge of shattering steel. Fighting at close quarters has continued, instead of an easy advance by the attacking forces.

Thus there are at least two things we can note with profit. The first is that victory is a tough nut to crack, and that we have a bloody business ahead of us. Secondly, the Allies have had to call in the good old infantry to capture Cassino. The thousands of tons of bombs dumped into the ancient town, and the accompanying artillery bombardment, couldn't in themselves take this position.

The moral, of course, is that we can't win the war from the air alone.

Some observers are wondering whether this demonstration will provide useful lessons for the forthcoming invasion of Western Europe. Well, it should increase our confidence in Allied ability to lay down enough explosives to clear a way for the landing troops on the beach-heads. Beyond that the comparison isn't very useful, for there's small similarity between the sloping sea-shores and the craggy mountains of central Italy.

There's one thing we shouldn't allow ourselves to do, and that's to lose our perspective of the Italian campaign because of this sensational operation. The fact remains that the further conquest of the peninsula is subsidiary to fighting on the continent. Hitler's inner fortress will be breached by blows from the Russians on the East and from the American-British-French forces on the West.

New don't misunderstand the position. Secretary of War Stimson yesterday described the opening up of the Mediterranean as "a great strategic victory for the Allied cause." That's so very true that he could have made it much stronger, but for his conservative way of putting things.

The Allied conquest of the Mediterranean, of which the capture of Italy was a part, was one of the decisive victories of the war. It was more than that, for we can say truly that without this success we couldn't have defeated Hitler.

Among the highly important operations has been the conquering of the lower Italian peninsula and the capture of the strategic Foggia airfields, from which the Allied warplanes can range into southern and eastern Germany, and the Balkans. The capture of Rome also will have moral and military value.

The point is, however, that while the further drive up Italy is contributing to the winning of the war, we can't expect to crack Hitler's Festung Europa through the Alps.

SCHOOLS READY FOR POEMS TO ENTER CONTEST

Winning Poem in County To Be Judged in State Contest

Pupils in both county and city school systems today are being encouraged to write poems for the state department of education's poetry contest.

The contest, held this year for the first time on a state-wide basis, is sponsored by the Ohio Poetry Day Association, founded by Tessa Sweazy Webb. Deadline for entries is April 15.

All poems written by school children will be judged by the poetry group here — Frank Grubbs, chairman, Miss May Duffee, Miss Miriam Perdue, Mrs. Ethyl McElwain, Mrs. Susan Fite, Miss Lucille Bates and Mrs. C. R. Vanzant — and the winning poem will be sent to Columbus by May 1 for judging by a state committee.

W. J. Hilly, superintendent of county schools, and A. B. Murray, superintendent of city schools, say English teachers are encouraging the work among their students and both systems expect to have "a nice selection of entries."

Tessa Sweazy Webb, founder of the contest says: "The State Department of Education, in cooperation with the Ohio Poetry Day Association, is sponsoring a poetry contest in the schools of the state with the purpose of using the winning poems in a brochure of Ohio verse for school use, to be printed this summer. We are broadening this project to include the winning poems from poetry groups in the state, if they wish, to participate. This contest will have to be under way soon among the poetry groups because the poems must reach the State Department of Education by June 1."

"We are asking each poetry group to do the judging of the poems written by its members, and send to us the winning poem. Each group may give as a prize to its winning poet, any award it desires, since this does not come under the jurisdiction of the Department of Education. The winning poems will be properly credited in the brochure, using the name of the poetry group in which it was entered. The State Department of Education can promise to use in the brochure only such poems as are selected by the committee of judges who make final selections of the poems."

"In addition to the winning poem, which will be given special notice, it is our desire to give each poet in the state opportunity to be represented in this brochure. In order to get the information before them, we are asking the poetry groups to notify their members, this to supplement publicity we hope to get in our newspapers. These poems will be judged, too, by a committee who makes the final selections. Because of the amount of material we may have, and considering the space, no poet should submit work of unusual length."

WORKERS TURN MONEY IN AT BUILDING LOAN

Red Cross Solicitors Begin Thursday To Deposit Contributions

Red Cross War Fund solicitors began Thursday to turn in the money they had collected at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building.

Leonard Korn, campaign treasurer, said little money had been turned in to him to date, but added he had not expected a large sum at the beginning of the drive. "People usually wait until they've got a sizeable amount before they turn it in," Korn said.

The money should be turned in by either the ward or township chairmen, Korn said. Workers may turn in contributions if their chairmen say they may, he added.

Wanted: Six Star Service Pin for Mrs. Charles West

Mrs. Charles West, 421 South Fayette Street, has placed an order with Gossard's Jewelry Store for a six-star service pin.

Six star pins are hard to get—few mothers have six sons in service—but because Mrs. West wants the pin so much and because one of her sons wrote to ask Gossard's to make a special effort to find a pin, the jewelers are doing just that.

Right now, only five sons are actually in the service, but the sixth, Cecil, has been inducted into the navy and is awaiting call now. When he is on active duty he will even up the army-navy score—three of his brothers are in the army and two in the navy. Cpl. Floyd has been in the South Pacific for two years. Jesse Reeder, a yeoman 3c is in teletype school in San Francisco, Calif.

Our war production picture, as revealed in the annual report of the Senate's Truman Committee, is an encouraging one. This is particularly true if you know the Truman Committee and its work.

Senator Truman is from Missouri, in every sense of the word. His colleagues are not Pollyannas. They are serious, painstaking, hard-headed trouble shooters. For three years they have been peering into every corner of our war preparation and production. They have found fault with a good many things—War and Navy Department expenditures, the products these departments were getting for their money, strikes, bad management—and they have made plenty of noise about it. But their latest report is almost wholly commendatory of industry and labor, and decidedly optimistic.

This optimism doesn't square with Navy Secretary Knox's recent speech urging a national service law. Without it, the secretary warns, the fall of Germany may bring a wave of absenteeism and labor turnover that would seriously cripple the war against Japan. He cites the high rate of absence and turnover after Italy's collapse, when victory seemed closer than it does today.

The Truman Committee, on the other hand, believes that "the major war production battles have been won," that our economy "can support a great army and navy without devoting as much of itself to war production as is necessary in less efficient countries."

Without access to the fact and figures, it is not possible to say who is right and who is wrong.

But the significance of American war production extends far beyond the Knox-Truman Committee argument on national service. As of today, the Truman report shows, it is bringing the scale of military advantage into balance. Germany and Japan gained a tremendous head start, but American production, in spite of waste and false starts, is closing the gap.

Here is one illustration of the changing situation. Six months ago high military authorities told the House of Representatives that Japan's manpower situation was better than ours, and that her pool of men from 17 to 21 had scarcely been touched.

Today Tokyo admits that high school and college students are being conscripted, that most of the city's "luxury" entertainment places have been closed to release 35,000 employees to war industries.

All this does not contradict the observation that "it's all over but the fighting." Both enemies still have strong armies, and great advantages of position. But our present production does seem to indicate that, in the great crucial battles ahead, we shall at least square off on even terms.

Hints on Etiquette

Don't let yourself be annoyed by trifling things. If you feel yourself unbearably irritated by some small habits of a member of your family or a friend, assure yourself that it is a minor matter, and ignore it. Concentrate on the big things of life and you will grow to be a better mannered and more understanding person.

Words of Wisdom

Works of true merit are seldom very popular in their own day; for knowledge is on the march and men of genius are the videttes that are far in advance of their comrades. They are not with them, but before them; not in the camp, but beyond it.—Colton.

Today's Horoscope

Your character, if this is your birthday, is retiring, thoughtful, rather philosophical, and you have definite opinions. You do not invite the advances of others, and are indifferent when you receive them. Those who are fortunate enough to gain your confidence are true and loyal friends. The next year will be one of trial and disappointment. Refuse to take unnecessary risks in travel, business and domestic affairs. Use the utmost vigilance and circumspection in all things during this period, and some good will come to you. Born today a child will experience many reversals. Health and business will require great care. Accidents are threatened, but grit and determination will win through.

spring, despite labor shortages, with virtually all of this increase in the two crops.

Fayette County farmers can and will do their part. They demonstrated last season their ability to overcome handicaps of labor and equipment shortages, with little help from the city residents.

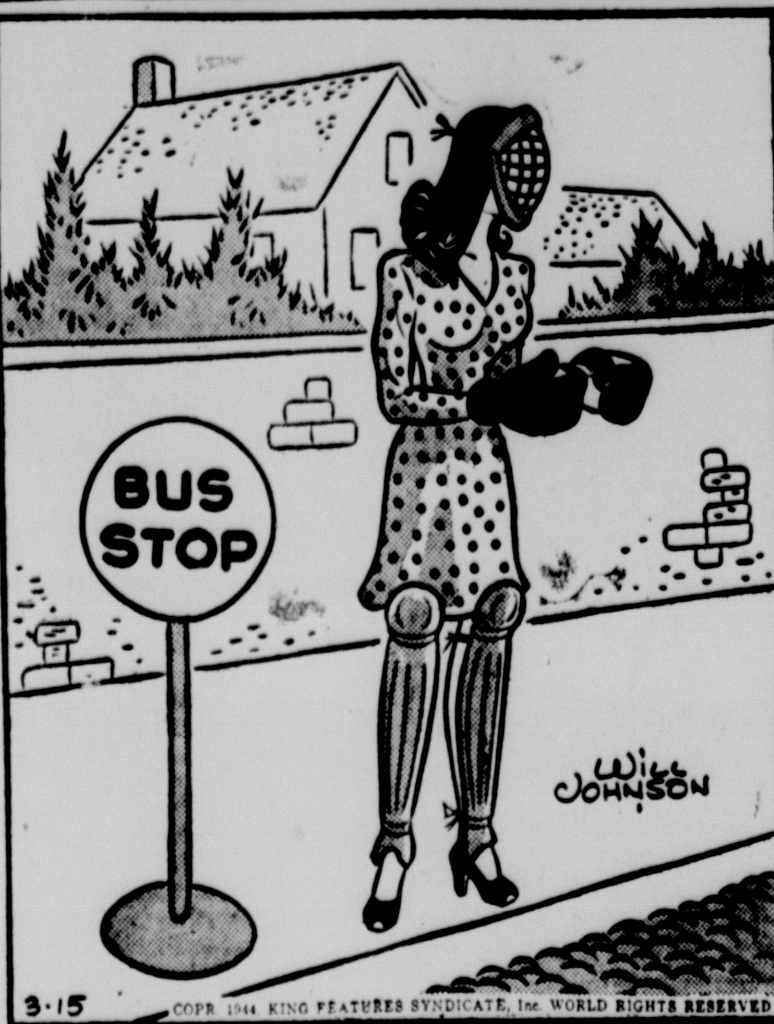

Perhaps the city dweller will be called upon this year to do more than raise his victory garden. He, too, can do his part if he pauses to think of the results of food and feed shortages.

He would pay more for less; he would see the rationing nuisance made many times more strict; and he would invite congress to heed the plea made by many for a labor draft.

If many people would exercise and use their brains as much as they do their tongues, they would save themselves a lot of trouble.

Who says the war isn't broadening? Never before did so many American girls receive messages from their boy friends in Hawaiian and the languages of the other out-of-the-way places in which Americans are fighting.

New Anaesthesia for Child-birth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"TWILIGHT sleep" is a phrase that will be remembered by the older members of my audience. It made a big stir about 1910 and was widely heralded, before it was widely tried, as the discovery everyone had been waiting for. It consisted in the use of a hypo-dermic of morphine and scopolamine, just enough to produce a twilight state of consciousness in the mother with little pain and no remembrance of the delivery of the baby. When it was tried out, however, it was found to be dangerous, resulting in many babies born dead; it was generally unsatisfactory and another dream was wrecked.

The essential difficulty in obtaining an anaesthetic for child-birth is that the pains of labor are the contractions of the womb and the contractions of the womb are what push the baby out. To obtain an anaesthetic with selective action (stopping pain, and not stopping the womb contractions) has been the goal and the problem.

Not that attempts were not made over and over again. "Twilight sleep" was by no means the first. As far back as 1847, soon after the introduction of surgical anaesthesia, Dr. James Y. Simpson, whose statue stands in Prince's Street, Edinburgh, introduced chloroform. But chloroform was only given in the last stages of labor and not much deadening of pain occurred.

Continuous Caudal Anaesthesia. From all reports from the most conservative and reliable sources, however, it looks as if this age-long dream of men for a method that would render childbirth painless and still safe has been accomplished. This is called continuous caudal anaesthesia.

The new method was the result of a good deal of research in anaesthesia that has gone on since the twilight sleep days. Most important precedent was the method of surgical spinal anaesthesia, by which the anaesthetic is introduced into the spinal canal through one of the apertures in the vertebral column. The result is complete anaesthesia from the neck down, the patient retaining full consciousness.

Method of Injection. With the modern method of anaesthesia for childbirth the injection is made in the region around the lower end of the spine where the plexus of nerves that supplies the womb and receives pain impulses is located. At first a single injection was made, but such a procedure reduced only the pains at the very end of childbirth. Now with the continuous method, it is begun almost as soon as the first labor pains appear and injections are made about every 45 minutes.

The results are truly astonishing to an old timer. The mother lies in bed comfortably until just before the delivery and goes through the whole experience without pain. The time of labor is greatly shortened in most cases, in some down to an hour or three-quarters of an hour. And all this quite safely. Many thousand deliveries by this method have been made so that the results can be evaluated.

Women who have had one or two babies by older methods and then by this say the contrast is simply indescribable—it is the difference between pain and suffering and no pain at all.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. H.:—Is it harmful to take a few simple exercises daily having a small rupture?

Answer: No, if the exercises are judiciously selected so as not to put a strain on the abdomen.

J. C.:—Can a doctor tell if there's a small growth in the vocal box without an x-ray? Is it a bad thing to have?

Answer: An x-ray does not help in revealing a growth on the vocal cords, but examination with a laryngoscope is nearly always final. There are several kinds of growths that occur on the vocal cords, but none of them are exactly a good thing to have.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Roger Flagg was sitting up in bed when Argus was ushered into his room in the hospital. Aside from looking a little pale, the model agent appeared none the worse for his "accident." A young nurse with blonde hair and a piquant face, plumped Flagg's pillows behind his back.

"You can see him for a few minutes," she said. "Then he must rest." She left the room.

"Well," smiled Argus, "I get shot and what happens? Nothing. But look at you. Pretty nurse and everything."

Flagg grinned. "With all due respect to my lovely nurse, I'd still rather be up and around. They've promised to let me go home in the morning, provided I stay quiet. I read in the morning paper about your being shot. How did it happen?"

Argus reached in his pocket for a cigarette. "Mind if I smoke?" he asked.

"Go ahead," declared Flagg. Argus offered one to the model agent and then recalled that he didn't smoke.

"I guess some one figured it was the open season," the detective said, lighting his cigarette. "I don't know who shot me. But I've got a hunch. How about you though? What happened to you?"

"Well," answered Flagg slowly,

"Pierre called me earlier in the evening and asked if I'd meet him at his studio around nine. He didn't say what he wanted but I gathered from the way he spoke, it had something to do with Syria."

"Ellen was to have posed for him at nine," said Argus. "Seems strange that he should make two appointments for the same hour."

"I didn't know that," asserted Flagg. "But then I thought the whole thing rather odd. Sturgis and I have never been very good friends. But I was planning to have dinner in the neighborhood, so I decided to run up afterwards and see what it was all about."

"Don't let it get to be a habit," grinned Argus. "Remember when Cynthia Lane wanted to see you, you ran into trouble, too."

"It is strange at that," Flagg's eyes dilated. "Do you suppose some one is trying to put me on the spot?" Flagg's brow contracted.

"You know, Argus, I'm almost surprised something of this sort hasn't happened before now."

"Why is that?"

"I guess you'd have to hold down my job for a while to understand. I get some of the craziest letters and phone calls from jealous lovers or suspicious husbands. The guy's always positive his heart's desire has embarked on a life of sin when she takes up modelling—whereas over ninety per cent of the girls are grand youngsters like Ellen, and lead perfectly normal, everyday lives."

"Now that you mention it," Argus said, "I suppose I've been a little on the jealous side myself. I can understand how some of these out-of-town swains would fear the

"The chief says you was right," said the desk sergeant, "and if you phoned, to tell you to go to 7103 Third Avenue, Apartment 2F. He just left here a minute ago himself." Argus thanked him and hung up.

Steele got out of a cab on the corner of Third Avenue and the 7100 block. Number 7103 was a somber looking building with an old iron fire-escape defacing its front. A sign hung over the door: "Apartments for Rent Furnished." Argus walked up to the entrance. He pushed the bell of 2F and was rewarded with a clicking sound. He opened the door. Facing him inside the dim, box-car hallway was a flight of sloping stairs. Argus walked up. The door to 2F was ajar.

Grange poked his gray head out. "Hello, Steele! You sure got here fast."

"Yes," said Argus. "What's up? Is this Redbeard's hideout?"

"Come in and see for yourself. My men and I just got here." He led the way into a fair-sized living room, with a yellowed lace curtain at the windows. Argus' eyes travelled to the sagging blue couch that stood in one corner. It was partially hidden by the angle of a refectory table which was covered with a piece of dingy mulberry velvet. On the table was a telephone. To the right was an alcove. Here Argus stopped short.

"There's your Redbeard," Grange said dramatically.

Lying on the floor, staring up at the ceiling, was Pierre Sturgis. His face was a ghastly white. Blood had dried on the corner of his gray overcoat. The medical examiner was bending over him. At regular intervals the photographers' flashbulbs exploded. Argus stood there for several seconds, just staring. Grange watched him intently.

"When did this happen?" Argus asked, finally.

"As near as we can place it, around last night," related Grange. "His watch shattered when he fell. It stopped at ten-ten. He was killed with the same caliber gun that got Flagg." Argus studied the position of the body.

There were obvious signs of a struggle. Powder burns showed around the wound. The medical examiner told him that Sturgis had been shot through the heart.

"We found this in his pocket," said Grange, producing the missing column from the Blade. Argus nodded thoughtfully.

"At last," he said under his breath. "When did you find Sturgis, Inspector?"

"About half an hour ago. I sort of took your tip about Redbeard having a hideout near Syria's apartment. I had a couple of men checking up in this neighborhood. One of them got to talking with the superintendent of this building and he described a man with a reddish beard as having rented this place late Thursday afternoon. Said he gave the name of Stoffsky."

RECORD CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM TO FOLLOW WAR

CITY AND FARM BUILDING WILL BE VERY HEAVY

Prefabricated Parts of New Structures Seen as Development

A flood of new building, in city and rural areas, is expected to follow the war just as soon as material is available for the work, and in addition to new homes, business houses, factory plants, and other buildings in the cities, new farm homes, barns and other buildings in large number will be constructed within a few years after the close of the war.

In Washington C. H. and Fayette County a great deal of building is being planned, including expansion of the API where helicopters will be built; a new furniture foundry building similar to the API plant as it was originally; a new theater building on East Court Street where the State Theater owns two buildings that will be torn out for the new structure; the new $250,000 telephone building on North Street and entire new plant facilities; possibly some new business rooms and a large number of residence properties.

Of interest at the present time is an article in Capper's Farmer, by Dean C. Carter, of the University of Illinois, entitled "Get Ready for Your Postwar Farm Home," and he predicted a vast and speedy evolution in methods of planning and constructing the future farm home.

While there may be a need for almost a million new houses, there are several million additional good enough to rebuild or remodel, Carter points out. He writes that as long ago as 1934 a farm-housing survey indicated the need of 700,000 new farm homes and that since then little has been done about it.

Citing the tremendous strides forward in prefabrication and production methods, Carter says there is some reason to believe postwar houses may be distinctly different from the old. Radical changes, however, cannot be adopted wholesale, especially in farm housing. Yet there will be differences, he adds.

Some of Carter's forecasts are: Electrically-driven mechanical equipment and conveniences will be available to more than half of the farm homes soon after the war. These will include automatic water systems, refrigeration units with zero free units and semi-automatic house heating. Septic tanks, at moderate cost, will put farm sewage disposal on a par with city systems.

Many new materials will be available at prices within reach. Among these will be improved wallboards, plywoods, board paneling, sheet plaster and synthetic panelboards. New insulation materials will add comfort and reduce fuel bills. More use will be made of local building materials such as gravel and neighborhood stones and even the soil itself.

New methods of construction, including pre-fabrication and factory-built units such as doors, windows, cabinets, panels, entire walls and even whole floor and roof sections will speed up-on-the-job building and lower costs.

Better designed kitchens and work areas, to include workroom, washroom and storage for fresh and canned fruits, will shorten the hours spent on housekeeping.

More aid in farmhouse planning. Such services financed by state colleges and Federal government will work hand-in-hand with trade associations, manufacturers and farm publications to show how new and improved

"Chip Off The Old Block," Universal's latest Donald O'Connor-Peggy Ryan feature, which comes Sunday to the screen of the State Theater, is by all odds the best of the lively comedy musicals which have teamed these engaging young personalities. The film is a superior example of movie fare suited for all the family, and was received enthusiastically.

The sensational young O'Connor will continue to soar on the strength of performances such as he delivers in "Chip Off The Old Block." He is again the irrepressible American youth, with a great capacity for fun and laughter, yet withal possessed of a maturity beyond his years.

For the most part, however, Donald is the clowning, quipping, spirited boy that won him such rapid popularity with film-goers.

Universal continues to demonstrate shrewd judgment in pairing O'Connor with pert Peggy Ryan, whose rare talents for fast comedy are rivaled only by her nimbleness as an eccentric dancer. Miss Ryan is good entertainment by herself; with O'Connor as a complement she is sure-fire.

houses can be built or old houses rebuilt to bring them up-to-date.

Answering the question, "How can postwar rural housing be financed?" Carter says that in many instances the farm family has been able to accumulate some cash reserves and reduce the mortgage debt and other obligations. The Federal Land Bank and commercial lending agencies can lend for housing under their present policies. If demand is sufficient, a plan somewhat similar to the Federal Housing Administration system of supervised, guaranteed loans might be devised for farm housing.

BREAKFASTS VARY IN LOCAL PRISONS

Collett Has Two Doughnuts And 'Cup of Mud'

Breakfasts in the city jail and county jail varied greatly, Thursday morning.

When "Mon" George local restaurant employee showed up at the city prison with a tray bearing three breakfasts, the tray contained a liberal helping of scrambled eggs and cured ham, two slices of "wheat" bread, and a cup of coffee with cream for each prisoner.

When Hughie McKillips served breakfast to Jim Collett in the county jail, he gave him two doughnuts (sunkers) and a cup of coffee with cream (cup of mud) as Collett has been eating rather lightly at breakfast time.

McKillips quoted Collett as saying: "I am getting tired of doughnuts."

With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

It is estimated that somewhere between forty and fifty million Americans will have filed income tax returns for the year 1943 by March 15th. Probably every one of these individuals have encountered some difficulty in understanding the complex instructions, or in filling out the complicated reports required. To them the action of the Ways and Means Committee of the House in beginning work on legislation to simplify the income tax laws, and reports required thereunder, should come as good news. The Committee at the present time is considering proposed changes in the law that may eliminate the necessity of persons with incomes of less than five thousand dollars per year from wages or salaries filing any returns or reports thereon. The estimated thirty million Americans, who would be affected by such a change in the tax laws, would have their taxes collected and their reports made for them by their employers. A study is also being made of numerous proposals to simplify the returns made by individuals in the higher income brackets, as well as to cut some of the red tape involved in corporation tax reports. Such reforms are certainly badly needed.

That the Congress will be more economy-minded than ever this year, as previously predicted in this column, is now being attested to by the manner in which various appropriation bills are being drastically slashed. The House and Senate Committees have reduced or eliminated many of the appropriation items requested by the various government departments, or by the Bureau of the Budget. Then when the appropriation bills reach the floor, the House and Senate Membership often make additional cuts in the amounts appropriated. Governmental expenditures for civil purposes during the coming fiscal year may be reduced as much as a billion dollars below budget requests. Appropriations for war purposes are also being closely checked and studied by the economy-minded legislators.

During the past week two prominent Americans—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, noted aviator, and Congressman Martin Dies, Chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities—have made speeches charging existence of a nation-wide plot by certain organizations to smear, weaken or destroy the Congress of the United States as a co-ordinate branch of the government. Both gentlemen cited evidence to support their charges. Congressman Dies, in a long speech in the House, submitted many documents and excerpts from testimony taken before his, and other committees, to directly link Communistic and other radical groups in this country with the recent attacks against the Congress and the individual Members thereof.

Final fate of the Soldiers' Vote Bill will depend upon the President. The conference report on the compromise measure is scheduled for a vote in the Senate early this week, to be followed by House action later in the week. Undoubtedly the compromise bill will receive Congressional approval and go to the White House, where many predict it may meet with a veto, inasmuch as the legislation is nothing like that which was originally sought by the President, who asked authorization for a short form Federal ballot to be used by the fighting forces. However, the Congress, feeling that the Constitution requires and provides for state control of elections, would not approve the use of such a Federal ballot, except where state ballots could not be made available and the Governor of a state certified that the Federal ballot would be accepted and counted under the laws of his state. If the compromise Soldier Vote Bill is vetoed it is doubtful that any further legislation will be attempted on the subject.

The Republican leadership in Congress is demanding that the Administration not wait until the "last minute" to bring up the legislative bill for the continuation of the Office of Price Administration, the authorization for which would otherwise expire on June 30th next, and then attempt to rush the measure through as an emergency matter without due consideration. While there is a general agreement within the Congress that price control must be continued during the war emergency, there is also a decided demand that some of the present practices of OPA be either greatly restricted or entirely prohibited. Such legislation is not of the type or kind that should be rushed through hurriedly without careful study and full consideration.

Last week the First Colorado District, which includes the city of Denver, went Republican by a good majority - the first time since 1928. The Denver District has long been known as a Democratic stronghold - President Roosevelt having carried it by as high as sixty thousand votes. However, in filling the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman Lewis, the electors selected a Republican business man over a wounded and much decorated war hero running on the Democratic ticket. The successful candidate won his fight on an anti-Administration platform. The Republicans have won eight out of the ten by-elections which have been held since November 1942 to fill vacancies in the House. At the present time the House is made up of 216 Democrats, 210 Republicans, 4 Minor Party Members, and 5 vacancies.

Robert Harper of Columbus Guest Speaker for Business, Professional Women Here

A picture of how war correspondents get their stories of the war on the front pages of the newspapers was painted for the Business and Professional Women's Club here Thursday night by Robert S. Harper, managing editor of the Ohio State Journal and former reporter on the old Washington C. H. Herald, when he spoke to the club at the North Street Church of Christ.

"There has never been a war covered as it's being covered now," Harper said as he explained most of the correspondents go directly from a newspaper office into army life with no training. "They have the same hardships and dangers as the army," he explained, adding one-fourth of the correspondents in this war have been killed—and others are getting the news at personal peril.

Illustrating, he told of Paul Lee, who lost 40 pounds covering Malta and Salerno battlefronts; George Tucker, a Broadway columnist who went from night clubs to Africa, suffered a brain concussion in a mid-air plane crash in Tunis and is now at Anzio beachhead, and Clyde Farnsworth in Chungking, China, who says we may expect some violent action in that theater with American troops pouring into China through India.

"No correspondent wants to turn in a story with anything in it to help the enemy," Harper said. Censors at the front, in New York and in Washington keep any helpful information from leaking through to the newspapers.

In the Civil War, he recounted, correspondents had the best chances for stories and turned in the poorest coverage of any modern war. He told how Gen. Lee was kept posted on Gen. Grant's movements through the Washington D. C. papers, which he had delivered every morning by special messenger.

"News and propaganda are so closely intertwined it's hard to tell where one begins and the other ends," he declared. "Americans should know the truth—because I think the American people can take it," he said. "We can't meet emergencies which will come after the war unless we follow it along."

Harper said he believed the suppression of Col. Dyess' "Death March on Bataan" has retarded the war. The story was kept a secret for five months and was released a month after Col. Dyess died in a plane crash.

"I give you my word that story is true," he declared. Harper was introduced by Miss Edith Wilson, program chairman. Miss Elizabeth Hendryx and Miss Jane Kelly were other members of the program committee.

Mrs. Vernice Deafner is the newly-elected president of the club, succeeding Miss Helen Slavens. Other officers elected on Thursday night are Miss Ruth Sexton, vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Miller, treasurer; Mrs. Mildred Rodgers, recording secretary and Miss Norma Jean West, corresponding secretary.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning, music supervisor for elementary schools here, sang "My Wild Irish Rose," "He's Just A Bit of Blarney" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," with piano accompaniment by Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood, at the beginning of the program.

The Washington C. H. club stands highest in the state in per capita contribution for the purchase of a Red Cross Clubmobile, according to the Buckeye Businessette, state publication of the Business and Professional Women's Club, it was announced by Miss Ruth Sexton, who conducted the meeting.

Guests at the meeting were Mrs. John Case, Mrs. Lee Harper, Mrs. John F. Otis and Mrs. Lucy Holmes. Group singing was led by Miss Betty Cook and Miss Helen King.

with Mrs. Betty Steen at the piano. The dinner was served at four long tables and one small table, decorated with cut-out shamrocks and tall green candles. Irish motes were favors.

The dinner was followed by prayer in unison. The topic for the afternoon was "Brazil, City and Industrial Work." Several hymns were sung and special musical numbers were beautifully rendered by Miss Marian Osborn which were "God Shall Wipe Away All Tears," and "Morning," by Ola Speaks.

A short business meeting followed at the close of which the devotional and program chairman, Mrs. J. E. Magly, called on Miss Emma Jackson, who is in charge of the Year Book of Prayer. She responded at length, and closed with prayer.

Next on the program was the subject, "Meet Our Good Neighbor Brazil," which was handled most efficiently by Mrs. Fred D. Woollard. Mrs. M. L. Clark then gave the topic "Our Neighborhood House," which was most interesting. Then the meeting closed with the society benediction.

Hostesses for the afternoon tea which is a usual custom of the meetings were: Mrs. C. R. Philhower, Mrs. C. P. Dunn, Mrs. J. W. Yates, Mrs. J. H. McCool, Mrs. Foster Brunner, Mrs. Warren Brannon, Mrs. George Schiller, Mrs. Roy Thompson, Mrs. John Browning, Mrs. Eldon Shoop, Mrs. Regina Staubs, Mrs. Lena Cook, Miss Etta McHenry and Miss Anna Passmore.

Returned From DAR Convention. Mrs. Frank Michael, regent of the Washington Court House Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is today at her home here after attending the three day convention held at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus.

While attending the meeting she had the pleasure of seconding the nomination for Mrs. James Patton as state regent. Others attending during the three days were Mrs. Inez McDonald and Mrs. Glenn Rodgers. Serving as pages during the three day meeting were Mrs. Eleanor Haigler and Miss Ann Robinson of the Jr. D.A.R.

Country's Next First Lady?

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles on the women who might possibly become the next First Lady.)

By Central Press
Jean Marie Faircloth MacArthur, Tennessee-born wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, could provide the Republicans with another bid for wavering southern elements.

However, aggressive is not the word for this little lady who prefers to leave the spotlight to her more spectacular, dramatic husband.

Armed with courage and a devotion to their cause, Jean MacArthur has stuck close beside her famous husband through all the recent military hardships. She comforted him at their bomb-exposed cottage on the island of Corregidor, and she and their small son, Arthur, shared the dangers of his subsequent escape to Australia.

When the general was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, friends insisted that she, too, deserved a decoration. Well, her husband had already thought of that. Proudly, she exhibited a diamond-studded watch.

"To My Bravest—MacArthur" read the inscription on the back of the watch. It was as if the general had conferred a deserved honor on a good soldier.

Washington and the nation know little of Mrs. MacArthur except for occasional photos and items from "down under." But the former Jean Marie Faircloth is a familiar personality to sleepy, little Murfreesboro, Tenn., her proud home town.

She was born there at the turn of the century.

Jean Marie grew up like any other small town southern girl in affluent circumstances. Jean Marie attended a private school in Murfreesboro, and later spent a year at Ward-Belmont in Nashville.

At her father's death she inherited a considerable fortune, and continued her traveling. In October, 1935, she was returning to the Far East, this time to visit an English couple in Shanghai. Aboard ship, she met Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, and through her, Mrs. MacArthur's illustrious son, the general.

They insisted that she join them for the inauguration of President Manuel Quezon in Manila, and speculation grew as she remained there, month after month. In 1937, Jean Marie Faircloth returned to Murfreesboro, and without confiding in anybody but her family, proceeded shortly to New York City, where she met MacArthur for the surprise marriage ceremony. She was 37 and he 58.

Jean MacArthur has proved an ideal mate for the general and a helpful partner in this crisis. She takes a personal interest in their associates and often writes thoughtful little notes. And, her appearance is as refreshing as her manner. She is small and trim, with dark hair and brown eyes. A ready smile reveals white, well-shaped teeth. She dresses simply but attractively, favoring tones of lavender in costumes and flowers.

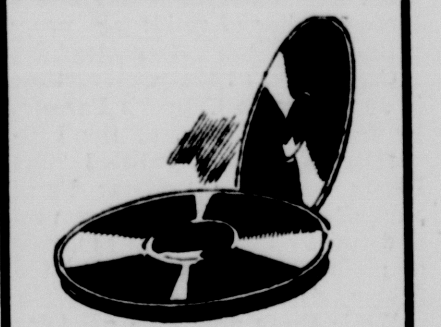

Her husband and their six-year-old son, Arthur, is her life. Keeping the family circle intact is probably most important to her, regardless of what call to duty may come to the general.

Two Guests Are Included at Luncheon-Bridge

Mrs. Jess Persinger, always the perfect hostess, entertained the Thursday two-table luncheon-bridge club at her home on North Main Street, Thursday afternoon with two guests included for the afternoon. They were Mrs. Alice Renick and Mrs. Clarence Snyder of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The deliciously-prepared luncheon was served by the hostess at one o'clock at the large table in the attractively-appointed dining room. As a centerpiece, the hostess used a water garden arrangement of yellow jonquils and lavender iris.

Following the prolonged and most enjoyable luncheon hour the remainder of the afternoon was gaily spent in playing bridge. Prizes were won by Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Colin Campbell.

Fayette County In War Effort With Both Feet

CITY FACTORIES AND FARMS ARE IN HIGH GEAR

Industries Have Contracts For War Material Valued At $2,548,000

Washington C. H. is in the war with both feet, figuratively speaking. A new era began to dawn in this quiet and somewhat staid trading center in the heart of a rich and progressive farming community when the war engulfed Europe—even before the Japs struck Pearl Harbor and plunged America into the conflict.

Over the years, the city had built up a reputation for good retail stores that brought people in from over a wide area and resulted in a bustling business section that few cities of its population could equal.

But, industry always had been secondary—that is until the war turned the daily life of the people for a flip-flop.

True, the Business and Civic Association and Chamber of Commerce made periodical passes to bring new industry in. And, the efforts did get results. It was the last one that turned the trick. A campaign to raise $20,000 was put across and the Furnace Foundry Co. put up a $100,000 building on South Fayette Street. Then came the war and the furnace business had to take a back seat. The big new building was idle, but not for long. Places like that were being hunted from coast to coast for new war industries.

In came the Aeronautical Products, Inc., to take over the plant for the manufacture of precision parts for warplane engines and other war-needed material.

With approximately 2,000 men and women on the payroll working around the clock in three shifts, that is the city's biggest war industry. But, it is by no means its only war industry. There are at least five others devoted to a considerable war production—The Cudahy Packing Co., The Coffman Stair Co., The Morton Show Case Co., The Jackson Glove Co. and the Washington Metal Products Co.

The total payroll is not definitely known. Neither is the total number of employees. But both are far greater than anything the city had ever known before. Unemployment is practically a thing of the past.

One criterion to the city's war effort is the estimate by the War Production Board of the value of War Supply and Facility contracts let to these concerns which places the total at $2,548,000 as of January 1 of this year.

The estimate was not broken down by the WPB.

This does not take into account the value of farm crops and livestock which is many times greater. Most of these industries are expected to continue with little abatement after the war. A survey to be made by the recently formed Committee for Economic Development, under the chairmanship of Ray Brandenburg, is expected to get more detailed data on the post-war outlook within the next six weeks.

Whether Washington C. H. ever again will be the quiet "country town" of pre-war days is a highly speculative question. Present indications are that an industrial expansion is ahead.

The buzzing industries in Washington C. H. have put the whole of Fayette County in the war effort. For, from the farms and county's villages men and women have come, many to take the first inside factory jobs of their lives. And, those now working on the farms are in the war effort just as deep as those at machines for they toil longer hours and under greater handicaps than ever to produce the food so vital to victory.

It is set forth in the account that total receipts from the farm and stocks and bonds were $21,521.53.

Total receipts from the stocks and bonds reached $6,002 and from the farm the total was $16,509.16.

The amount paid out of the stocks and bonds reached $318.70 and amount paid out of the farm income totaled $6,318.49. Deposited in the Washington Savings Bank in liquidation of stocks and bonds account total $302.25, while $171.60 was reinvested in Puritan Brick Co. stock.

Amount reinvested in Sherwin Williams Co. stock reached $2,100. Total amount chargeable to the stocks and bonds account was $6,002 less $1,050 for investment in Sherwin Williams stock at $105 per share (10 shares.)

A balance of $2,589.20 was shown in the 17th account filed last year and it is noted that $2,206.94 was used in restocking the farm.

McCoy made the following distributions:

From the stocks and bonds receipts, $4,633.30 as follows: Ashland College, $1,000; Alice Kearns, $100; Missionary Board of the Brethren Church for Home Missions, $494.66; Foreign Missions, $35.33. Superannuated ministers of Brethren Church, $618.33; Old Peoples and Children's Home, Flora, Ind., $618.33; Each township in Fayette County, $176.66.

McCoy, as the trustee, drew compensation of $696 from the farm income and $247.60 from the stocks and bonds receipts.

Farm expenses were chiefly for supplies, labor and equipment.

Receipts were from crops and livestock produced on the farm and disposed of during the fiscal year.

AUTO TAGS MOVING SLOWLY AT PRESENT

All Must Have Them by First Of April

During this week there has been a pronounced falling off in the sale of motor vehicle tags at the Fayette County Automobile Club office.

Part of the time the small group of clerks have had nothing to do but wait, and as a result of the lagging sales, the number of tags sold during the remainder of the time until April 1 will at times tax the capacity of the office to handle the demand.

Motor vehicle owners are being urged to get their license plates without further delay.

WAIT A MINUTE! YOU MAY NOT BE THROUGH TAXES

15,000,000 To File Estimated Incomes by April 15, Fennig Says

So you're glad this income tax business is over?

Well, wait a minute—if you're one of 15,000,000 among the 50,000,000 income taxpayers in the nation, it's already time to start thinking about what you'll have to pay next month—by April 15.

These 15,000,000 people will have to file declarations of estimated 1944 tax—and start paying (in many cases, the amount over and above what will be taken out of their earnings).

S. W. Fennig, internal revenue representative here, says you're one of the 15,000,000 if:

1. You expect to have 1944 income of more than $2700 if single, or $3500 for a married couple. Or—

2. You expect to have outside income—in addition to wages or salaries subject to withholding under pay-as-you-go—of more than $100 this year. Or—

3. Your income isn't subject to the withholding tax. (Note: Farmers may wait until next Dec. 15 to file declarations—but if they do, they'll have to pay the entire amount of estimated tax at that time.)

If you're in one of these classes, you probably filed such a declaration last September. The payment due next month, in an average case, will be something like the payments you made in September and December.

You won't get the new forms from the internal revenue bureau until at least next week—they are being mailed to all persons who filed declarations last September and others who are required to file this year may obtain copies from Fennig—but you can get a rough idea of what you'll owe in an average case this way:

1. Take the amount of income you expect this year, subtract your personal exemption ($500 if single, $1200 for a married couple, plus $350 for each dependent) and estimated deductions, and multiply the remainder—the taxable income—by 19 per cent. (If taxable income is more than $2,000, add 3 per cent of the amount over $2,000.)

2. From your estimated 1944 income, subtract the victory tax exemption of $624, and multiply the remainder by 3 per cent to get the victory tax.

3. Add the two taxes.

4. Subtract the amount you'll have taken out of your pay.

5. What's left is roughly what you'll owe, to be paid in four quarterly payments—April, June, September and December.

When figuring deductions, remember that from now on you can't deduct federal excise taxes (on admissions, telephone and telegraph bills and railroad fares). The new law wiped out these deductions and the earned income credit formerly allowed in figuring the normal income tax.
